This 24 hours begins with fresh breeze from the North, attended with rain, part of the people had liberty on shore until 4 P.M. Capt Smith's orders was for them all to be down to the boat when the time was up. the boat was sent on shore at the time appointed but only three returned, to the ship Capt. Smith requested Mr Fish to put their names of those on shore on the Log Book, which he answered I won't Mr. put what I think proper in it, and you can not help yourself. you have nothing to do with it you have nothing to do with any thing that should be put in it, after some talk Mr Fish ran down below, and as he was going down, he says you will have to work if you get that Log Book. you damned sons of bitches after he came up on deck, Capt. Smith told him that one of them had got to leave the ship. Mr Fish said that he would not as long as he had a drop of blood in his veins. Capt. Smith ordered the boat to be lowered down and went on shore, to get some assistance, but could not find any. he went on board of a French Frigate and got some assistance, and put Mr Fish on board, it was said by the Steward that he got his pistols and was loading them. Capt. Smith told him not to have any thing more to do with the ship, nor the crew at present.
